

FUTURE BLOOD DONOR

Red Cross Blood Drive Announcement School Newsletter Article

Wells Junior High School is participating in the American Red Cross Future Blood Donor program, which introduces middle school students to the importance of blood donation. The program offers our school an activity that is not only fun, but also educational and gives our students a chance to support our community.

The Future Blood Donor program teaches students about the function of blood in our bodies, the different components of blood and the need for blood donors in our community. Students are then asked to recruit individuals to donate at our school's upcoming blood drive. The Red Cross believes that we will help create a future generation of blood donors by getting students involved at an early age, and we want to join with their vision.

Students will take part in a Future Blood Donor educational presentation at school and will receive a letter requesting parents, family members and other adults to donate blood on their behalf. The letter will include a donor appointment request form for those interested in donating to complete and return to school with their student.

Each student who recruits at least one person to come out to donate at the blood drive will be recognized and will receive a fun appreciation item from the Red Cross. We want our students to know how important they are and about their impact on their community. This experience will be a fun way to engage our students, and the best part is knowing that they are helping save lives!

Below is the information for our school's upcoming blood drive.
